„I'm going to make the world as I like it!“

This motto should not be just for Pippi Longstocking, but apply to every child in the world. Not all children have the courage, the power and the possibilities - they are born but not asked, if they want to grow up with their family and in these circumstances. Too many young people are missing family support, well-founded (educational) opportunities, social competence - and perspectives.

We at HIT develop and promote social projects, that open up opportunities to disadvantaged young people in different countries around the world. That's how we want to help children to shape their lives as they please.

„Small projects can make a big difference.“

An insight into the work of HIT.

There is a lot of personal commitment behind the charitable society and that has a face: Petra Rinow is the managing director of HIT.

What is the idea behind HIT?

We would like to open up opportunities to children and adolescents from precarious conditions. For this, we support different projects: from donations in kind and sponsorships over health care to safe housing and education. These are small, local projects, directed by very dedicated people. They can do a lot for the kids, make a big difference – and show them real perspectives.

HIT supports projects in different countries.

How are the partners selected?

Our partners are handpicked and connected with HIT through personal contacts. In doing so, we do not only support projects in Germany: we are also passionately committed to Africa, as we also have close contacts there and are frequently on site. We are fully convinced and enthusiastic about every single project. Very important to us are the child sponsorships in South Africa, which we convey them 1: 1. We know each child and their family personally and visit them regularly – so that our help arrives with certainty.

Why should donors support HIT?

We are a small charitable society – that is our strength: through the close personal contact we make sure that donations in kind and money benefit the children. We are not an anonymous organization, but people who are working with their hearts. And the laughter in the children's eyes show us: Our work is worthwhile!

Very special partner.

A small selection:

HIT – Help In Time: full commitment to chosen projects.

HIT, based in Hamburg, was founded in 2015. We support social projects by monetary or material donations, income or ideas developed by ourselves nationwide as well as outside Germany. We exclusively promote nonprofit projects that we have visited personally, again and again and of which we are completely convinced.

It's about for example,

- the basic care of the children and to improve adolescents,
- to provide them with better training opportunities or
- to support their social integration.
